Commitment Builds for CONSTRUCT2010 and The TFM Show

July 28, 2009 (Dallas, Texas) Even before the close of the 2009 event, exhibitors began committing to CONSTRUCT2010 and The TFM Show. The steady stream of space and sponsorship reservations has continued for the commercial building event co-located with the senior executive facility management show. The majority of the companies already in line for Space Draw are past exhibitors who see the power of interaction on the show floor.

The Space Draw deadline for initial exhibit booth reservations of Thursday, September 10th, is just six weeks away. Exhibitor response is enthusiastic and space is booking quickly. With prices held at the 2009 rate, most of the show's prime exhibit space will be sold during this initial space assignment process. Companies have been quick to go online to select their top booth location choices in order to complete their online contract application.

"In this tough economy, it is more important than ever to meet face-to-face to build relationships that can have a significant impact on growing your business. And, with non-conflicting education hours, our exhibitors have the time to meet one-on-one," notes Tom Cindric, Director, Hanley Wood.

Those that participate in CONSTRUCT2010 and The TFM Show, get direct access to key decision-makers with billion dollar purchasing power. Thousands of architects, engineers, contractors, specifiers, facility managers and other key professionals will be looking for new products, innovative solutions and the latest in technology for the institutional, industrial and commercial building industry.

In conjunction with the 54th CSI Annual Convention, CONSTRUCT2010 and The TFM Show, are both owned and produced by Hanley Wood. This professional trade industry event will take place May 12-14, 2010 at the Pennsylvania Convention Center, Philadelphia, PA. Complete information and an easy Online Application/Contract is available online at www.CONSTRUCTshow.com or www.TheTFMshow.com.
